countless hours of support to staff and patrons at the Library of Michigan. She received the prestigious Lucy Mary Kellogg award from the Michigan Genealogical Council in 2005 for her significant contributions to the genealogical community.

She was a member of the Lansing Matinee Musicale, serving locally on committees and as Recording and Corresponding Secretary, and at the state level as Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer of the Southwest District for the Michigan Federation of Music Clubs. She enjoyed the monthly concerts and luncheons, and supported the Performing Arts Students program.

Ruth stayed in her house in Lansing after Glen's death in 2008, but reluctantly moved into an apartment at Grandhaven Manor in 2011 and put the house on the market. When it did not sell quickly, her daughters urged her to lower the price but she held out and sold it two years later for the full asking price. She transferred to Grandhaven Living Center in 2017 when she needed more care. She enjoyed some of the group activities offered to residents, especially spelling bees, which she usually won.

She died peacefully on January 12, 2021, just a few weeks before her 100th birthday, and was laid to rest in the family plot at Lake Charles Park Cemetery, St. Louis, Missouri, along with her deceased husband, parents and sister.

Ruth is survived by daughters Barbara (John H.) Uhlemann and Beverly (James R.) Wilson, granddaughters Anne (Stephen) Sieck and Elizabeth (Thomas) Crafts, grandson Timothy Wilson, great-grandchildren Peter Sieck, Adrian Sieck, Treyvon Robertson, Matthew Crafts and Jeremy Crafts, and by her brother, Leonard Ziegenmeyer.

Ruth's family would like to express our deep appreciation to the Mayflower Church clergy, staff, and members for their many kindnesses including pastoral care and other visits, transportation, moving assistance and help with her belongings after her death. We are very grateful.

Ruth Lisette Ziegenmeyer Lewis was born in Clayton, Missouri, on Easter Sunday, March 27, 1921, the oldest of three children of Herman F.J. and Ethel Mary Jackson Ziegenmeyer, and died on January 12, 2021, in Lansing, Michigan. She graduated from Harris Teachers College in St. Louis in 1943 and on September 4 of that year married Lt. Glen Walter Lewis. His service in the United States Army Air Force during World War II took him to Europe for many months shortly after their wedding but he returned in 1945 and they settled in Detroit where they lived and raised their two daughters, Barbara and Beverly. They moved to Lansing in 1975.

Ruth was a homemaker when her children were young, and served as president of their elementary school PTA. She was a skilled home sewer and made clothes for herself and her daughters, and once even made a sport jacket for Glen. At one point she became interested in millinery and made many beautiful hats that she wore to Boulevard Congregational Church in Detroit where she and Glen belonged for many years. She devoted many hours to the Boulevard Women's Fellowship and served as the church wedding coordinator and church treasurer.

After moving to Lansing, Ruth and Glen joined Mayflower Church and quickly became active members. Ruth's dedication and attention to detail were put to good use in her service as a trustee, on the committee to revise the bylaws, and as a key member of the Second Saturday Suppers team. Ruth's relationships with members of the church community meant a great deal to her and she thought of Mayflower as her family.

Around this time Ruth developed a deep interest in genealogy, first as a hobby and later as a Certified Genealogical Record Searcher. In addition to working with her own clients, she shared her expertise in and love of genealogy research with the community by volunteering Ruth's dedication and attention to detail were put to good use in her service as a trustee, on the committee to revise the bylaws, and as a key member of the Second Saturday Suppers team. Ruth's relationships with members of the church community meant a great deal to her and she thought of Mayflower as her family.

Around this time Ruth developed a deep interest in genealogy, first as a hobby and later as a Certified Genealogical Record Searcher. In addition to working with her own clients, she shared her expertise in and love of genealogy research with the community by volunteering countless hours of support to staff and patrons at the Library of Michigan. She received the prestigious Lucy Mary Kellogg award from the Michigan Genealogical Council in 2005 for her significant contributions to the genealogical community.

She was a member of the Lansing Matinee Musicale, serving locally on committees and as Recording and Corresponding Secretary, and at the state level as Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer of the Southwest District for the Michigan Federation of Music Clubs. She enjoyed the monthly concerts and luncheons, and supported the Performing Arts Students program.

Ruth stayed in her house in Lansing after Glen's death in 2008, but reluctantly moved into an apartment at Grandhaven Manor in 2011 and put the house on the market. When it did not sell quickly, her daughters urged her to lower the price but she held out and sold it two years later for the full asking price. She transferred to Grandhaven Living Center in 2017 when she needed more care. She enjoyed some of the group activities offered to residents, especially spelling bees, which she usually won.

She died peacefully on January 12, 2021, just a few weeks before her 100th birthday, and was laid to rest in the family plot at Lake Charles Park Cemetery, St. Louis, Missouri, along with her deceased husband, parents and sister.

Ruth is survived by daughters Barbara (John H.) Uhlemann and Beverly (James R.) Wilson, granddaughters Anne (Stephen) Sieck and Elizabeth (Thomas) Crafts, grandson Timothy Wilson, great-grandchildren Peter Sieck, Adrian Sieck, Treyvon Robertson, Matthew Crafts and Jeremy Crafts, and by her brother, Leonard Ziegenmeyer.

Ruth's family would like to express our deep appreciation to the Mayflower Church clergy, staff, and members for their many kindnesses including pastoral care and other visits, transportation, moving assistance and help with her belongings after her death. We are very grateful.

Ruth Lisette Ziegenmeyer Lewis was born in Clayton, Missouri, on Easter Sunday, March 27, 1921, the oldest of three children of Herman F.J. and Ethel Mary Jackson Ziegenmeyer, and died on January 12, 2021, in Lansing, Michigan. She graduated from Harris Teachers College in St. Louis in 1943 and on September 4 of that year married Lt. Glen Walter Lewis. His service in the United States Army Air Force during World War II took him to Europe for many months shortly after their wedding but he returned in 1945 and they settled in Detroit where they lived and raised their two daughters, Barbara and Beverly. They moved to Lansing in 1975.

Ruth was a homemaker when her children were young, and served as president of their elementary school PTA. She was a skilled home sewer and made clothes for herself and her daughters, and once even made a sport jacket for Glen. At one point she became interested in millinery and made many beautiful hats that she wore to Boulevard Congregational Church in Detroit where she and Glen belonged for many years. She devoted many hours to the Boulevard Women's Fellowship and served as the church wedding coordinator and church treasurer.

After moving to Lansing, Ruth and Glen joined Mayflower Church and quickly became active members. Ruth's dedication and attention to detail were put to good use in her service as a trustee, on the committee to revise the bylaws, and as a key member of the Second Saturday Suppers team. Ruth Lisette Ziegenmeyer Lewis was born in Clayton, Missouri, on Easter Sunday, March 27, 1921, the oldest of three children of Herman F.J. and Ethel Mary Jackson Ziegenmeyer, and died on January 12, 2021, in Lansing, Michigan. She graduated from Harris Teachers College in St. Louis in 1943 and on September 4 of that year married Lt. Glen Walter Lewis. His service in the United States Army Air Force during World War II took him to Europe for many months shortly after their wedding but he returned in 1945 and they settled in Detroit where they lived and raised their two daughters, Barbara and Beverly. They moved to Lansing in 1975.

Ruth was a homemaker when her children were young, and served as president of their elementary school PTA. She was a skilled home sewer and made clothes for herself and her daughters, and once even made a sport jacket for Glen. At one point she became interested in millinery and made many beautiful hats that she wore to Boulevard Congregational Church in Detroit where she and Glen belonged for many years. She devoted many hours to the Boulevard Women's Fellowship and served as the church wedding coordinator and church treasurer.

After moving to Lansing, Ruth and Glen joined Mayflower Church and quickly became active members. Ruth's dedication and attention to detail were put to good use in her service as a trustee, on the committee to revise the bylaws, and as a key member of the Second Saturday Suppers team. Ruth's relationships with members of the church community meant a great deal to her and she thought of Mayflower as her family.

Around this time Ruth developed a deep interest in genealogy, first as a hobby and later as a Certified Genealogical Record Searcher. In addition to working with her own clients, she shared her expertise in and love of genealogy research with the community by volunteering countless hours of support to staff and patrons at the Library of Michigan. She received the prestigious Lucy Mary Kellogg award from the Michigan Genealogical Council in 2005 for her significant contributions to the genealogical community.

She was a member of the Lansing Matinee Musicale, serving locally on committees and as Recording and Corresponding Secretary, and at the state level as Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer of the Southwest District for the Michigan Federation of Music Clubs. She enjoyed the monthly concerts and luncheons, and supported the Performing Arts Students program.

Ruth stayed in her house in Lansing after Glen's death in 2008, but reluctantly moved into an apartment at Grandhaven Manor in 2011 and put the house on the market. When it did not sell quickly, her daughters urged her to lower the price but she held out and sold it two years later for the full asking price. She transferred to Grandhaven Living Center in 2017 when she needed more care. She enjoyed some of the group activities offered to residents, especially spelling bees, which she usually won.

She died peacefully on January 12, 2021, just a few weeks before her 100th birthday, and was laid to rest in the family plot at Lake Charles Park Cemetery, St. Louis, Missouri, along with her deceased husband, parents and sister.

Ruth is survived by daughters Barbara (John H.) Uhlemann and Beverly (James R.) Wilson, granddaughters Anne (Stephen) Sieck and Elizabeth (Thomas) Crafts, grandson Timothy Wilson, great-grandchildren Peter Sieck, Adrian Sieck, Treyvon Robertson, Matthew Crafts and Jeremy Crafts, and by her brother, Leonard Ziegenmeyer.

countless hours of support to staff and patrons at the Library of Michigan. She received the prestigious Lucy Mary Kellogg award from the Michigan Genealogical Council in 2005 for her significant contributions to the genealogical community.

She was a member of the Lansing Matinee Musicale, serving locally on committees and as Recording and Corresponding Secretary, and at the state level as Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer of the Southwest District for the Michigan Federation of Music Clubs. She enjoyed the monthly concerts and luncheons, and supported the Performing Arts Students program.

Ruth stayed in her house in Lansing after Glen's death in 2008, but reluctantly moved into an apartment at Grandhaven Manor in 2011 and put the house on the market. When it did not sell quickly, her daughters urged her to lower the price but she held out and sold it two years later for the full asking price. She transferred to Grandhaven Living Center in 2017 when she needed more care. She enjoyed some of the group activities offered to residents, especially spelling bees, which she usually won.

She died peacefully on January 12, 2021, just a few weeks before her 100th birthday, and was laid to rest in the family plot at Lake Charles Park Cemetery, St. Louis, Missouri, along with her deceased husband, parents and sister.

Ruth is survived by daughters Barbara (John H.) Uhlemann and Beverly (James R.) Wilson, granddaughters Anne (Stephen) Sieck and Elizabeth (Thomas) Crafts, grandson Timothy Wilson, great-grandchildren Peter Sieck, Adrian Sieck, Treyvon Robertson, Matthew Crafts and Jeremy Crafts, and by her brother, Leonard Ziegenmeyer.

Ruth's family would like to express our deep appreciation to the Mayflower Church clergy, staff, and members for their many kindnesses including pastoral care and other visits, transportation, moving assistance and help with her belongings after her death. We are very grateful.

Ruth Lisette Ziegenmeyer Lewis was born in Clayton, Missouri, on Easter Sunday, March 27, 1921, the oldest of three children of Herman F.J. and Ethel Mary Jackson Ziegenmeyer, and died on January 12, 2021, in Lansing, Michigan. She graduated from Harris Teachers College in St. Louis in 1943 and on September 4 of that year married Lt. Glen Walter Lewis. His service in the United States Army Air Force during World War II took him to Europe for many months shortly after their wedding but he returned in 1945 and they settled in Detroit where they lived and raised their two daughters, Barbara and Beverly. They moved to Lansing in 1975.

Ruth was a homemaker when her children were young, and served as president of their elementary school PTA. She was a skilled home sewer and made clothes for herself and her daughters, and once even made a sport jacket for Glen. At one point she became interested in millinery and made many beautiful hats that she wore to Boulevard Congregational Church in Detroit where she and Glen belonged for many years. She devoted many hours to the Boulevard Women's Fellowship and served as the church wedding coordinator and church treasurer.

After moving to Lansing, Ruth and Glen joined Mayflower Church and quickly became active members. Ruth's dedication and attention to detail were put to good use in her service as a trustee, on the committee to revise the bylaws, and as a key member of the Second Saturday Suppers team. Ruth's relationships with members of the church community meant a great deal to her and she thought of Mayflower as her family.

Around this time Ruth developed a deep interest in genealogy, first as a hobby and later as a Certified Genealogical Record Searcher. In addition to working with her own clients, she shared her expertise in and love of genealogy research with the community by volunteering

After moving to Lansing, Ruth and Glen joined Mayflower Church and quickly became active members. Ruth's dedication and attention to detail were put to good use in her service as a trustee, on the committee to revise the bylaws, and as a key member of the Second Saturday Suppers team. Ruth's relationships with members of the church community meant a great deal to her and she thought of Mayflower as her family.

Around this time Ruth developed a deep interest in genealogy, first as a hobby and later as a Certified Genealogical Record Searcher. In addition to working with her own clients, she shared her expertise in and love of genealogy research with the community by volunteering countless hours of support to staff and patrons at the Library of Michigan. She received the prestigious Lucy Mary Kellogg award from the Michigan Genealogical Council in 2005 for her significant contributions to the genealogical community.

She was a member of the Lansing Matinee Musicale, serving locally on committees and as Recording and Corresponding Secretary, and at the state level as Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer of the Southwest District for the Michigan Federation of Music Clubs. She enjoyed the monthly concerts and luncheons, and supported the Performing Arts Students program.

Ruth stayed in her house in Lansing after Glen's death in 2008, but reluctantly moved into an apartment at Grandhaven Manor in 2011 and put the house on the market. When it did not sell quickly, her daughters urged her to lower the price but she held out and sold it two years later for the full asking price. She transferred to Grandhaven Living Center in 2017 when she needed more care. She enjoyed some of the group activities offered to residents, especially spelling bees, which she usually won.

She died peacefully on January 12, 2021, just a few weeks before her 100th birthday, and was laid to rest in the family plot at Lake Charles Park Cemetery, St. Louis, Missouri, along with her deceased husband, parents and sister.

Ruth is survived by daughters Barbara (John H.) Uhlemann and Beverly (James R.) Wilson, granddaughters Anne (Stephen) Sieck and Elizabeth (Thomas) Crafts, grandson Timothy Wilson, great-grandchildren Peter Sieck, Adrian Sieck, Treyvon Robertson, Matthew Crafts and Jeremy Crafts, and by her brother, Leonard Ziegenmeyer.

Ruth's family would like to express our deep appreciation to the Mayflower Church clergy, staff, and members for their many kindnesses including pastoral care and other visits, transportation, moving assistance and help with her belongings after her death. We are very grateful.

Ruth Lisette Ziegenmeyer Lewis was born in Clayton, Missouri, on Easter Sunday, March 27, 1921, the oldest of three children of Herman F.J. and Ethel Mary Jackson Ziegenmeyer, and died on January 12, 2021, in Lansing, Michigan. She graduated from Harris Teachers College in St. Louis in 1943 and on September 4 of that year married Lt. Glen Walter Lewis. His service in the United States Army Air Force during World War II took him to Europe for many months shortly after their wedding but he returned in 1945 and they settled in Detroit where they lived and raised their two daughters, Barbara and Beverly. They moved to Lansing in 1975.

Ruth was a homemaker when her children were young, and served as president of their elementary school PTA. She was a skilled home sewer and made clothes for herself and her daughters, and once even made a sport jacket for Glen. At one point she became interested in millinery and made many beautiful hats that she wore to Boulevard Congregational Church in Detroit where she and Glen belonged for many years. She devoted many hours to the Boulevard Women's Fellowship and served as the church wedding coordinator and church treasurer.

After moving to Lansing, Ruth and Glen joined Mayflower Church and quickly became active members.
